

Michael Fraser

Michael has the quiet confidence of someone who has a complete understanding of their role in any situation. Whether leading a team through a complex project, guiding a client through pre-construction problem solving, or workshopping with subcontractors Michael adopts a humble approach which lends itself to developing lasting relationships with internal and external stakeholders.

Michael has extensive experience in a wide range of project types. He has built a knowledge base from which he can add value to all of his projects, be it in construction methodologies, programme options, value management or contract negotiations.
